The residents showed City staff and the Park District the existing storm sewer and both beach areas.

Everyone walked up East End to Lippold Park, and then westward in Lippold Park to see the restrictor plate the residents would like reviewed and changed.

Everyone then walked down Greenfield Avenue and half way up Crystal Beach.

During the walking tour, the residents pointed out all the locations where water is stagnant in the yards, and which homes had water in their basements.

It was a very educational walk and the City appreciated the residents' time to show them the areas of concern.
